Did you know that water damage poses the single greatest threat to your home?

With the kids back in school and the holidays fast approaching, it can be really easy to overlook another very important “to do” for the fall season – “winterizing” your home before the cold weather arrives. Fall is the best time to inspect your house to ensure it is well protected. If you do find areas that need attention, schedule your repairs now while the weather is still fair. This will ensure that your home will be fully prepared for the anticipated rain, snow and ice in the winter months ahead.

Winter Preparation Checklist

ROOF - check the condition and pay careful attention to the flashings.

CHIMNEY - make sure the cap is in good condition and have it cleaned if you plan to use it.

GUTTERS & DOWNSPOUTS - make sure they are clean and functioning properly.

STORM WINDOWS - make sure they are functioning properly and the weep holes are open.

DOORS, WINDOWS, & SILLS - check for loose caulking, peeling paint and damaged wood.

TRIM, SIDING & SHUTTERS - check for peeling paint and damaged wood.

* You may also want to purchase at least one bag of salt to be ready for the first snowfall of the season.

We look forward to the opportunity to assist you in both protecting and beautifying your home.
